PEPPERELL

Announcement is made by Mrs. George Kennedy of New Bedford of the marriage of her son, Frank L. Belyea, formerly of Pepperell, to Miss Margaret Meunier of New Bedford. The marriage took place April 4 at St. Anthony's church, New Bedford. followed by a reception and wedding breakfast at the bride's home, 159 Bowditch street. Mr. and Mrs. Bel-yea, upon their return from their honeymoon, will reside at 11 South Oak street, New Bedford, where Mr.

Belyea is engaged in business. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Henderson opened their summer home at Rock Maple farm the first of the month, and will remain here for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dunlap have their house, recently purchased on Foster street, nearly ready for occu-pancy, having electric lights and a bath installed. Their former tenement on the same street has been purchased by Curtis D. Gilman, who was one of the houses entered by the unruly band of marauders, who have accomplished so much malicious mischief in town. It was maintained that the best policy was to keep slence as each new break was discovered, but since the work went on, while people waited for it to be stopped, it might seem that residents could have protected their property better if it had been given more publicity. Miss Guerrier's cottage bore evidence of very rough treatment, particularly her library.

The regular meeting of the Woman's club is to be held at the vestry of the Community church. Tuesday, April 19, at the usual hour. A lecture will be given by Rev. Francis E. Webster of Waltham, and there will be musical selections rendered. A committee will serve club tea at the conclusion of the entertainment. The members of Prudence Wright chapter, D. A. R., will be the guests of the club for this occasion.

ment on the same street has been purchased by Curtis D. Gilman, who is to live there as soon he haskes some changes and improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen have rented the small cottage on the South road opposite the Ringdahl place, and will spend their weeks'ends there from Waltham.

Miss Elizabeth Piper is somewhat expected here this week from Cambridge to decide on certain matters about her new home on Mr. Lebanon street, The carpenter work is practically completed, the plumbing done, and the interior nearly finished. Miss Piper may find it possible to occupy it in May.

Waltham.

A meeting of the Mt. Lebanon Community associates was held on Wednesday of last week with Mrs. Leon Whitcomb at the cottage on Rock Maple farm with the usual pleasant social time and sewing and afternoon tea by the hostess. No other meeting was appointed at that time.

Miss Marion Merrill left town on the evening train Saturday night to make connection at Nashua for the northern express. She intends to spend ten days or longer with her sister, Mrs. Robert Carr and family at West Burke, Vt., her place in the grain store of Mr. Rowell being taken by Mrs. Edna Kittredge Clement of Westford, a former bookkeeper in that place of business.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will observe their 50th wedding anniversary on Wednesday, April 20, and will be at home to all their friends from three to five and from 7.30 to 3.20 in the evening. This occasion was an added reason for their return North. Arthur M. Morrison, the sought-after absconder, has been heard from indirectly, as another check was received here at the bank the past week, signed by Frank Smith, ostensibly. Old Folks' Concert.

Plans for the old folks' concert by the young people of the Hope Circle are progressing well. Rehearsals are being held and the parts assigned. Although the talent is entirely local, they may not be recognized under the following names: Mifs Mehitable Baker, at the Harpsichord; Mistrefs Fiorence Nightengale, sweet singer, and leader of "ye bigge chorus"; Mifs Prudence Smith and Mistris Myra Jones, committee on program and general arrangements, Members of "ye bigge chorus" are to be called by the following names. Faith, Hope and Charity Greenleaf, Cyrus Brown, Sarah Jane Wetherby, Benjamin Ross, Johanna Speakalot, Roxanna Peacock, Lucinda Montgomery, Eben and Stephen Wittier, Hosea Gabbles, Maggie Brown, Abram Whittier, Stephen and Eben Dolittle, Chadiah Blodgett, John Bredford, LucyAnn Tarbox, Susannah Whitaker, Deborah Brownlow, Matilda Shoemaker, John Brown, I. B. Goodspeaker, Jerusha Cowper, Carolina Green and Patience and Lucy Doormat. Much is expected from the young entertainers, and it will be sufficient inducement for all to attend their concert in May when we add that their costumes will probably match their names. Miss Georgianna Maynard spent the week-end at her home on the South road, returning to South Ashburuham Samuel Soule, superintendent of the water works at Gardiner, Me., was in town over Saturday, coming from Boston, where he had business. He was the guest of his brother, Elias B. Soule, and also went to see his sister, Mrs. George H. Shaw, who is still critically ill. He returned to Boston on Sunday afternoon. Although very weak, Mrs. Shaw seemed to recognize her brother. The dancing party of the local operators of the New England Telephone Company, set for the date of May 12, will probably be held at the Opera House this year.

At the regular meeting of the Hope Circle, held with the Misses Boyd on Monday evening, with a large attendance of about twenty-five, a rehearsal was held under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Harris, who acted as leader for that evening. There was the usual devotional opening, with singing, followed by the rehearsal, and toward the close of the evening there were a few games and refreshments of fruit and cake,

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd were invited to share in the social time and a fine little concert program was given by the four young ladies of the household, the Misses Boyd, on the violin, bass viol, clarinet and piano.

Death.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hanna, Kenneth Eugene, died at the home of his parents, Tucker street, on Friday, April 8, at the age of 15 months. He was taken ill with measies some weeks ago, and later had whooping cough, which merged into bronchitis, the cause of his death. He was a bright, active child, and only a few days before he was attacked by the measles a physician, attending another member of the family, remarked that he was the picture of health. There are two other children. Raymond, aged eight, and Emily who was born in Dunstable a year later. Another little girl, Helen, died last year in honer followed. Mrs. John K. Felch is the hostess.

Ludwig Krouse, an aged resident, died at the home of his daughter. Mrs. Henry M. Kabele, near Minot's corner Monday. Mr. Krouse was $1 years old and was born in Germany. He had always made his home with his daughter during their residence in town. Death whis due to the infirmities of old age. Funeral services were held from the home of his other daughter, Mrs. Samuel Rosenburg, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. William E. Anderson officiating. The bearers were Arthur Burnham, Arthur and James Wilson and Samuel Rosenburg. Interment was in Fairview cemetery.

Events have moved rather swiftly with Mrs. Henry M. Kabele within the last two weeks. The deaths and burials of her husband and father and the sale of his farm within that time have taken place. She will remove to Lowell and make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Holbrook. The farm is sold to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hodson of Lowell, who will take possession at once. We are told that there were others who would have been ready purchasers, which goes to prove that it is the small, well-kept fruit farm that finds a ready market. The P. G. Collins farm at Parker-ville, which has been eccupied recently by O. S. Young, is changing ownership.

Then she fell ill and obtained permission to go to a Near East Relief hospital for treatment, her daughter having been rescued by its workers some time She did not return to the Turk. For six months she was kept concealed, and in the meantime the Turks passed the death sentence upon her. She knew too much to be permitted to leave the country. The method of her escape eventually was sensational, but it is not to be disclosed for political reasons. She saw many horrors, among them, a Christian woman buried alive, in a round hole six feet deep. She tried in vain to reach England with her evidence, but finally set sail for the United States with her daughter, who is now in a public school here.

Mrs. Mamassian waits but for one thing. Nearly all of her relatives are But she will return to Armenia on the day when the dead shall not cry in vain for vengeance.

It was in English, the strange address, in its sprawling, boyish hand-Virginia Mamassian, an attractive writing. The finest French, however, young Armenian woman who saw her would have been as unintelligible to husband murdered by the Turks, and poor old Nanette. It was the village cure, himself white-haired and bowed enter the harem of the officer who by the burdens of war, who read the directed the massacre, is working in closely written pages. "I am very weak. That last night sapped my small strength, and then the fever gripped me. But my mind is quite clear.

"I can see you now, the compassion in your kind eyes as you stooped over the wounded lad fallen at your door compassion that changed involuntarily to aversion, to hatred, as you saw the too-familiar gray of the German field uniform.

"You would have turned away-I knew it-but you could not. Something held you. Was it the thought of a boy in the horizon blue? Or was it the utter helplessness of the young stranger that touched your mother heart? No tears of pity softened your eyes, yet I felt your knotted hands fumbling at my stained coat, dragging my weight over the low doors!!! . . .

"Then I was lying in a bed, such a bed as my weary body had not known for months. I was clean, too, and ly ing between clean sheets, the numbing pain somehow softened. Someone bent over me, offering food. Your touch was gentle; you no longer shrank from me.

"Again I wakened. It was night, the moonlight streaming in through the tiny window. You were kneeling on the earthen floor, talking with your God:

"Then I saw anew this awful conflict, in its power to sear a woman's heart. For you spoke of loved ones gone-two sons with the colors, offering their lives daily for France; the husband of your youth, lying beneath a wooden cross; a daughter's purity violated by the invader; the child, your last, slain before your very eyes. Ah, how well you knew the bitterness

"Yet you could pray. Kneeling there, crushed and alone in your old age, amid the ruins of all you had cherished, you prayed for me. Enemy though he was you asked God's blessing upon the wounded lad you had taken in

"You slept, that night, upon the hard floor. And I also slept, in spite of my pain, for your words had brought me a strange peace.

"For two days and nights I lay passive, gaining strength to complete my mission. Patlently I was cared for, and tenderly, and I marvelled at the miracle of your love.

"For how could you know that it was for France, the France of my fathers, that I had fought, for her that I had risked life and honor? And how, indeed, could you know of the bitterness of soul, the cruel disillusionment to this unhonored task? "I could not speak. Even when, discarding the lying uniform that could no longer serve me, I slipped away in band, I could leave no word,

"Now at last I may speak, for my work is done and I rest.

"What may come I know not, but this I know: My spirit that was crushed is whole again. You saved a life, O nother of France, but you did more than that-you gave back faith to a soul that was dead. That is why, as I wait here, I have no fear. Surely the God who has comforted your heart The women's bible class will meet next Monday evening with Mrs. Mar-tha J. Conant. will not forget me.

"Now it is evening, and I am weary. But in my heart is a peace that will never leave me. Good-night, dear mother, and may the good God bless you for what you have done."

The postscript was short, scribbled by a tired nurse in a pause between duties.

"He is gone, dear mother," read the "He is gone, dear mother," read the wept softly, "but his smile is wondrous sweet as he sleeps. France will "Now it is evening, and I am weary,

Fordson

FARM TRACTOR

Latest Price $625 f. o. b. Detroit

When Henry Ford set about building the Fordson Tractor he had a thorough understanding of just what it should be and what it should do. His early life on the farm gave him a deep insight into the daily life of the farmer; his mechanical genius saw the type of tractor needed. He began work on a farm tractor thirty-five years ago, and for more than twelve years he experimented over more than 7,000 acres of land in different kinds of soil, with different crops.

So he built the Fordson. It is so simple that a schoolboy can operate it. It is low in first cost. It is lowest in operating cost and Fordson parts and Fordson service are always to be had promptly from the

The Fordson is a profitable investment. It can be used every working day in the year. It is an inexpensive power plant that will lighten your farm work. It has proven its worth on more than a hundred thousand farms not only in operating implements in the fields but in belt and pulley work. And it doesn't eat when

At the Baptist church last Sunday Rev. Mr. Mead, of Norwood, occupied the pulpit, giving a practical talk on the affairs of the church. The church was tastefully decorated with laurels and ferns. On Sunday, April 3, the electric lights were used in the church for the first time. They were installed by Harold Sargent. The decorations of the church that day, which were in charge of the Misses Floyd and Susie Shattuck, were unusually attractive. The front of the pulpit platform and each side were decorated with laurel, ferns and potted plants, among them some handsome begonias, while a rose-colored azalea and a genesta in full bloom lent bright touches of color. There were two persons baptized—Ralph Lawrence and Miss Isabel Floyd. On Sunday it is expected that the preacher will be one who comes as a candidate.

Townsend friends were sorry to learn of the accident which befell Arthur Eastman of Worcester, formerly of this town, when an automobile in which he was riding with a friend, Roger Herbert, in Worcester, overturned on Burncoat street Tuesday. Both were pinned under the wreckage. The wrecked machine was lifted and the men conveyed to the city hospital where X-rays were taken, the muscles on the left side of Eastman's face were badly torn where he had been dragged along the ground under the machine. If blood poisoning does not set in, it is thought he will soon, be able to leave the hospital. Herbert had many scalp wounds and leraises on the face.

The members of the Red Cross in this village are requested to note that the Community Willing Workers will meet April 21 and 22 in the hall of the Methodist church at 1.39 p. m. to make children's petticuats, cut and ready for sewing and there will be at least seven sewing machines for their use; these garments form the quota allotted to the Townsend branch of the Red Cross in a campaign now being carried on for the relief of the children overseas. The condition of threse children is appalling and the American Red Cross now calls upon the women who served in the work-rooms during the war, and all others interested in the saving of these children to mobilize in a nation-wide sewing circle to procure the required garments. Donations of clean, white strong cotton flamed, white thread and buttons are solicited and may be left with Mrs. A. L. Atwood before the 21st of April.

WOULD PROHIBIT DOG-EATING

Custom Common Among the Igorots is Declared to Be Undesirable

for Many Reasons. Those who remember the article in this magazine a short time ago telling of the cruelties connected with the killing of dogs for food among the Igorots, says Our Dumb Animals, will be glad to know that it has aroused sufficient interest to cause the Manila Dally Polletin to say, according to a clipping we have just received: "The office of the Department of the Interior is constantly receiving from persons in the United States, mostly women, letters protesting against dogeating in the mountain province among the Igorots, it was declared by Secretary Kalaw of the department All of them, he said, arge that in the interests of civilization and better and higher mode of living, a law should be passed by the Philippine legislature prohibiting the sale and the use of dogs as food material. "Aside from the fact that the act of eating dogs is highly undesirable, the letters state, it is very inhumane. The Igorots, they state, like to eat lean dogs and that the more bony they are, the more palatable they taste to the Igorots. Consequently, when a dog is bought in the dog market at Baguio or at any other place, it is left to starve for many days before it is eaten, the communications

"When asked if the passage of a law prohibiting the sale and the ent ing of dogs by the Igorots was in order, Secretary Kalaw declared that it might be done in an indirect manner.

SWORD WORTHY OF OWNER

Blade Worn by Miles Standish Has Been Traced to the Time of the Crusades.

Among the relics of the Pilgrims that may be seen when visitors throng the old town of Plymouth for the tercentenary observances few are more interesting than the sword of Miles Standish. It may be seen in Pilgrim hall.

It is a Damascus blade and presumably came into the possession of the Pilgrim captain from someone whose ancestors had brought it from the Crusades.

It bears several curious inscriptions, which waited until June, 1881, to be translated. Then Prof. James Rosedale of Jerusalem went with a band of Arabs to America's most important shrine and found that the carved characters belonged to different dates -some in Cufic and very old.

He was only able to translate one, of a later period, in Arabic. The words given here show that its spirit was quite appropriate to the spirit of the Pilgrims:

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Poultry profits often depend largely on the marketing, and the producer should study demands to learn how.

where, and when to dispose of his products to the best advantage. It often pays to dress the fowl at home for certain markets, the difference be tween the prices for live and dressed fowl making it worth while. Attractive appearance is of much importance in selling poultry; therefore, the producer who plans to market his poultry dressed should study the details of killing, dressing and packing, in order to prepare the products in the best possible manner. Requirements for dressing and packing vary somewhat in different markets, and it will pay the producer to learn any special demands of the distributing point to which he intends shipping.

Killing, Dressing, and Packing. The birds should be kept without feed from 18 to 24 hours before killing, unless they are to be drawn, specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say. In the latter case, they should have no feed for at least 10 hours before killing. When ready to kill, suspend the fowl by the legs and, using a knife, cut the vein at the back of the throat through the mouth. As soon as this vein is cut run the point of the knife through the roof of the mouth into the brain, which causes the bird to lose all sense of feeling. The fowl can be paralyzed also by a blow on the head, instead of piercing the brain.

In most markets dry-picked birds are preferred. Immediately after killing, while the bird is still bleeding the picker removes the feathers, being careful not to tear the skin. If the picker waits until the bird is nearly minutes. If the fowl is to be shipped dry it should be hung up until the skin be omes thoroughly dry. Poultry which is to be sold direct to the consumer should be drawn before it is cooled. Poultry which is sold to the market should not be drawn, as it will keep better not drawn than if drawn. A slit large chough to admit the fingers is made from near the end of the keel bone toward the vent. Then cut carefully around the vent and pull out the intestines, leaving in all the other organs, unless the consumer's requirements are otherwise.

Should Be Packed Solidly.

When the birds have been thoroughly cooled, they are ready for packing. Packages for dressed poultry vary, but they should be neat and small enough to be easily handled. Line the inside of the boxes or barrels with clean, unprinted paper, and pack the birds solidly, so they will not shift in the package, but be careful not to brulse them. For delivery to retail customers, pasteboard boxes of sufficient size to hold one or two birds are very attractive. When poultry is to be packed in ice, barrels are generally used, packing them with alternate layers of ice.

COTTON IN FAVOR

Dress Fabrics for Summer Are to Be Attractive.

Weaves Fine and Beautiful; Rich Shades Are Taken From the Silk Color Card.

The cotton dress fabrics for the summer of 1921 represent one of the most remarkable achievements in the history of the manufacturing of materials. While the weaves are fine and beautiful it is not there that the real achievement lies. It is in the dyeing. The shades are taken from the silk color card and the same shades are faithfully reproduced in cottons as they appear in the most beautiful of sliks—and the sliks have been marvelous during the past few years.

It is difficult to give you an idea of the hundreds of delicate hues. One organdle alone comes in 63 shades, ranging from the palest tints to deep colors. All the new red, brown and orange tones, so much favored in the smartest of winter garments, are seen n the cotton materials.

Next to the color comes the weave. There are sheer organdies entirely new n pattern and weave. Some come in fancy checks, the checks being in different degrees of thickness, but the whole very sheer. Brocaded organdies are in the patterns of the handsomest silks of the present day and old ashloned damasks.

Dropstitch voiles in myriads of beautiful shades are being effectively worked out in copies of French lingerie frocks that carry a great deal of handdrawn work, thus making a simple yet distinguished dress without the expense of the handwork.

Among the family of English prints is a new arrival known as Tropical English print. The cloth itself is soft, much like a fine batiste, but beautifully printed, as its name indicates, in all the colors seen in a tropical landscape or sunset. Some of the patterns and colorings are a bit weird, it is true, but these are overbalanced by the many that are unusual without being bizarre. Some are in old-fash-ioned challis patterns that are certain of success through the quaint old-time appeal that they make.

Dotted swiss is always a favorite with the American woman, although little used by the French, so, being one of the most popular cotton fabrics used in this country, great attention has been paid to it in regard to color. There are wonderful henna shades, sapphire blue, various shades of maize, brown and most remarkable reds.

THE "VAMP" HAT FOR SPRING

"The Vampire" is aptly applied to this spring hat, a creation of enameled straw, with chantilly lace and tassels of silk thread and jet beads draped

MAN IS GROWING HANDSOMER. The announcement in a medical magazine of high repute that the American man is handsomer and better. housed and fed and clothed than ever man was before, comes timely to meet a pressing need of the day. Within a comparatively short time no fewer than five colleges in this country have presented claimants to the honor of being a perfect woman, measured by the accepted model of Venus of Milo, but not one has put forth a man claiming to approach the Apollo Belvedere. The injustice is not confined to colleges. Magazines have done worse. The romancers that write their advertising, the realists that furnish their stories, and the artists that illustrate the lack of ideas of both, show a like tendency to depict man either as a pigmy beside some daughter of the gods divinely tall or else a dummy on which to exhibit new styles of clothing. It would be difficult to find any pictorial art, socalled, of our periodical literature, including the commercial pages, in which a man's figure is presented in any Fallure after failure marks the successive steps in the downward course of Russia under Bolshevism. The Bolshevists wanted collective property in land and collective management. They robbed the old land owners and stopped the sane and very remarkable land reform then in progress, but by turning land over to the peasants they have merely strengthened the class that adheres to private ownership, writes Prof. R. T. Ely of Wisconsin university in an exchange. Yet the peasant proprietors do not enjoy the full blessings of private property in land, because, rightly, they feel insecure in their titles. When the peasant becoms rich, will not a poor peasant seek to dispossess him? But that is not all. Bolshevism having paralyzed industry, the people in the cities have nothing to exchange for what the peasants produce except worthless paper, and of that the peasant has had enough.
